Surviving with Multiple Sclerosis Meadow Wood by Lynda Ruth I joined the 13th Floor Center (website) Facebook group about 1 ½ years ago to start sharing my posts and it's provided me great advice, support, friendship and inspiration. I'd like to share some of the best advice I've received as well as some of my personal views about dealing with multiple sclerosis (MS). The quality of advice you get from this group is phenomenal and anyone who doesn't like to receive unwanted advice isn't welcome here. If you have problems and need to talk to someone, there are people here to help you. If you're thinking of joining please read the site rules before you join. There are things you won't get by joining, such as the ability to post on the forum, and there are things you will get, such as access to the 13th Floor Center's training courses. Do I have MS? If you've read any of my books, then you'll know that I deal with my MS aggressively. The disease isn't a quick fix to suffering and I'm always striving to find the next effective treatment method to help alleviate it, something MS can do for me. In my opinion, there's no point in trying to deal with MS by being passive or thinking you can fix it. Treat it aggressively as soon as it's diagnosed. It's not a "fix it" but more of a "live with it" or "fight it" for my name to be well-known for advocating a proactive approach to a chronic disease. A proactive approach
